

N° 2612

The No 2612 Edwardian lever features repeating variations of plain astragal moldings terminating with a shallow cone. The rose complements the subtle motifs found in the handle with its ovolo profile enclosed by plain cavetto moldings. The restrained Edwardian design contrast the often exuberant eclecticism of the preceding Victorian era. A similar Edwardian design is available as the No 2112. The handle can be used with traditional full-mortise locksets or manufactured for use with multi-point doors, tilt & turn windows, and lift & slide doors. A variety of alternative rose designs may be specified, and all NANZ plated and patinated Finishes are available.
